

Thanks to Dave (dreitzes) for sharing these tracks on the net in 2007.

Dave noted:

The sound quality for the Trilogy outtakes (and "Days of Wine and Roses") is inferior to the other Reprise studio material I've posted, though still very listenable. "Surrey with the Fringe on Top" is merely an instrumental track; Sinatra commissioned the arrangement from Billy May, then changed his mind. (May explained that the musicological, highly technical reason for rejecting the Richard Rodgers tune was that, upon careful analysis, it was deemed to be "a buncha s! I don't know why [Sinatra] picked it.")

There were two separate sets of sessions for the "Past" portion of Trilogy, one in July and one in September. I don't know for certain which dates would be correct. According to Will Friedwald's book, The Song Is You, "Surrey" was only attempted in July.

The three live tracks from Atlantic City are from a very good soundboard tape.

The 13-minute session excerpt for "Me and My Shadow" has better sound quality - and a special bit of "Sam" quality.
