

Thanks to original uploader punkjazz; and to carville and zootype for keeping the show alive at Dime.

Original notes:

Here is a quote related to this band: After a European tour with Gunther Hampel's Time Is Now band ("We played at a fashion show with models wearing stainless steel clothes"), McLaughlin was in England mixing his first album, "Extrapolation", when he received a trans-Atlantic call from an old friend, Dave Holland, who had come to the States to play with Miles Davis. On the phone, he introduced John to Tony Williams who eventually invited him to come to New York for a recording date. After a few false starts (they were rejected by Columbia producer Al Kooper: "That lowered my estimation of him"), Tony Williams Lifetime clicked and Larry Young, Williams and McLaughlin stayed together about two years. Meanwhile, McLaughlin was simultaneously recording with Miles Davis, appearing most notably on "In A Silent Way" and "Bitches Brew".
